

19

To know that Madrid is a capital and that it has so many inhabitants with their particular manners, dress, and temperament, ^{to know} ~~with~~ their cultural settings, ^{their} ~~and~~ ^{religion, and economics,} social history, is ~~an~~

^{to know as} unessential knowledge as distinguished from that knowledge which should inevitably proceed it and which deals with the meaning of mankind everywhere.

Such knowledge is concerned with people wherever they may live, not just with the people of Madrid. Humanity and not its groupings, ^{occasional, commercial} ~~its racial and~~ national ways, comes always first. The culture of man proceeds his many cultures.

P. 295